Some information about your Estimated Line Speed

These are estimates of your access line speed, which is the maximum speed that your line can receive. Your actual speeds are likely to be lower because they are influenced by factors including the nature of your line, network capacity and the number of customers on the network or any particular website at any one time. We will be testing your line's reliability during the first 10 days and gradually increase your speed until we establish a stable speed, so you should leave your broadband router on during that time.

If your access line speed is significantly lower than the estimate shown, you should contact us.

Broadband availability is subject to your location. Speeds vary with location and line quality.
